

Savor a San Diego Spring Break, at Kona Kai

The Shelter Island spot is ready for warmer temps with pool cabanas, adventure credits, and take-it-easy afternoons.

Alysia Gray Painter

A day at the pool, complete with a lounge-ready cabana? That could be part of your spring getaway to Shelter Island.

SPRING BREAK... is not a one-size-fits-all kind of occasion. But you can say, with some confidence, that observers of the annual get-out-of-town tradition are looking for some relaxation, a little time by the water (be that an ocean or pool or another splashy scene), and a moment to soak in the sunbeams after a pretty stormy winter. To address these yearnings, and to make it easier for springtime travelers to find the chill-down fun they seek, Kona Kai Resort & Spa on San Diego's Shelter Island has created packages under the header "Spring Break Your Way." These...

"CURATED"... experiences are also far outside the one-size-fits-all column, meaning that if you can stay for a several nights, say four nights or more, or you're looking for your own cabana to kick back in, or you'd like breakfast for four people, plus an adventure credit, there's a spring break package that'll fit your vibe. To check out the trio of spring-break-y choices, visit this page, and be sure to peruse the amenities listed for each. There are other new happenings and features afoot at the stylish tropical destination, like...

"41 NEW LUXURY SUITES," as well as a pool reserved solely for grown-up guests. Kona Kai is famously at the edge of the water, and if that makes you think beachy thoughts, get stoked: It has a private beach. Other must-visits include the large-scale SpaTerre, as well as Vessel Restaurant. Oh yes, and those always bustling pool bars, a favorite go-to for spring breakers who happen to be age 21-or-over.